THE NATIONAL ELECTION.

The election of HARRISON scarcely appears to be doubtful, although at Democratic headquarters it is still claimed that Mr. CLEVELAND has a chance left. This fortune hope is based on Indiana and Illinois turning up on the Democratic side. These States, with Connecticut, New Jersey and the Solid South, would give Mr. CLEVELAND 205 electoral votes, or four more than sufficient to elect him.

But the country may as well make up its mind that HARRISON is to be President for the next four years and that the Democratic party has been retired after a single term of power. Beyond question this is the result of the issue made by Mr. CLEVELAND's Tariff reform message, which came too late or too soon. The people were not sufficiently educated on the subject to be able to overcome prejudice and discover the fallacy of Republican arguments during the heat of a Presidential campaign. Yet the result in the Western States will show what progress the principle of Tariff Reform and tax reduction has made among the masses.

Mr. HARRISON will doubtless make a safe, honorable and conservative President, and it is to be hoped that he will conduct his administration on the substantial basis of Civil Service Reform.

THE HERO OF THE BATTLE.

The great victory won by Gov. DAVID B. HILL places him at the head of the Democracy of the State and Nation. He has carried New York by a handsome plurality, and his victory is clearly due to the confidence the independent citizens have in his integrity, ability and fidelity to the public interests.

Everywhere it is seen by the vote that Gov. HILL's triumph was secured not at the expense of the Presidential ticket of his party, but through the support of intelligent Republicans, especially those of German nationality, who preferred him for Governor, although in favor of their own party candidate for President. In fact, Gov. HILL owes his great victory to his own merits; to the earnest sympathy he has steadily manifested in all that benefits the working classes; to his stout defense of the rights and liberties of the people during his administration, and to the opposition of narrow-minded, prejudiced and bigoted men who waged a bitter and cowardly war against him.

The State is fortunate in having secured so well-equipped, liberal and upright a Governor as DAVID BENNETT HILL for the next three years.

TAMMANY'S TRIUMPH.

The election of HUGH J. GRANT as Mayor of the city is one of the gratifying results of yesterday's contest. The number of votes he received disproves the assertion that he was simply "Tammany's candidate." His triumph has a double meaning. It indicates, first, that the citizens believe that a public officer who has been faithful, honest and efficient in all the trusts heretofore confided to him, will continue to be true to his record, and next, that the people of New York cannot be imposed upon by false pretenses and sham reform.

If Mr. GRANT should use the office of Mayor for partisan purposes without regard to the interests of the city, he would speedily be repudiated by those who have given him an independent support. His past public services give confidence that he will administer the City Government in the interests of the people, and that he will insist on honesty and efficiency in all the departments where reform is now urgently needed.

IN THE SOUP.

The soup kettle is naturally well filled this morning. The number of the candidates rendered this inevitable. Mr. CLEVELAND is in the soup. At least it so appears at present. He may, at all events, be said to have not more than one foot hanging out over the side of the kettle. The chances are that he will not get out.

Mr. WARNER MILLER is in the soup over his ears. He will weaken the contents of the kettle by a liberal admixture of cold water, but the people will be satisfied with the favor after all.

Mr. HENRY is in the soup. He will splutter and kick, beyond a doubt, but he is held safely at the bottom of the mixture by a pile of 40,000 Grant ballots. He will make the soup hot and spicy, and will have some sharp nagging for the people who pitched him in. He will not get out under a twenty-years' term.

Cocoon is in the soup. But he has the satisfaction of knowing that he has supplied many a hungry man with a good dinner out of his little boom.

Miss MURPHY is in the soup. But Miss MURPHY will not find it as unpleasant as some places he has been in during his lifetime.

Other ingredients are added to the mixture, which tend to improve its flavor. Mrs. LEONARD naturally floats at the top, as she does not wear a hideous costume. The kettle still contains room for the delinquent department officials whom Mayor Hewitt has heretofore protected. They will all be in the soup before many months pass away.

Mrs. LEONARD intends to keep it up after election. She notified Judge Lawrence that she intends to pitch into him and all other "male voters," in a public address, and invites arrest for contempt of court. CYNTHIA is safe. No one will arrest her. She is not Mayor, but then she has HEWITT and COOGAN for companions in misery.

JAMES J. COOGAN ran an honest campaign for Mayor. His address to the workmen was really a good, straightforward document, and he spent his own money. He did not get many votes, it is true, but he conducted a fair canvass, resisted all efforts to buy him up and lost nothing in honor if he did not gain much in politics.

The offices recently occupied by the GRACE-LIVING combination to "beat HILL" are understood to be now offered for rent, at a low rate, for the remainder of the year. A number of unused documents are for sale cheap for waste paper.

It was a hasty, not to say a profane remark made by a prominent but disgraced member of the County Democracy early this morning, when asked if the Amsterdam Club-House was for sale: "Oh, Amsterdam the Club!"

Mayor GRANT has given the Evening Post and Mayor HEWITT a very bad spell.

WORLDLINGS.

A Chicago newspaper makes the statement that about three-fifths of the people in that city are believers in Spiritualism.

The richest gold mine in the world is said to be the Douglas Mine, in Australia, which yields about $300,000 every month and has but three owners.

In a game of whist played on a local train from Boston the other day one of the players, the dealer, was astonished on looking at his hand to find that he had dealt himself thirteen trumps.

Secretary Fairchild, of the Treasury, is said to be more easy of approach than any other public official in Washington, and notwithstanding the great pressure to which he is constantly subjected he maintains a remarkable evenness of demeanor.

The towns of Cullman, a thriving Alabama village, makes the boast that it has not a negro within its borders. It is named after a rich German who wished to found a colony of his own race in the Alabama frontier growing region. It has a population of 2,000.

DATE FORTUNE.

Could You Stand a Million-Dollar Smile?

And Would You Rather Be Rich Than Be President?

"If I Were a Millionaire" Has Made a Great and Decided Hit.

Jewels for Nellie Bly.

If I were worth a million dollars I would spend third of it on diamonds for Nellie Bly. But she would not need them much, as she is a jewel herself.

An Enthusiastic Prohibitionist.

If I had one million ($1,000,000) dollars I would spend every dollar of it in putting down the cause of America—plain speaking, rum. If I had any left I would spend it on the Prohibition party.

Would Freeze Out Foreign Talent.

If I had a million I should freeze out English dramatic and operatic people and encourage talented Americans. I should place American talent to the front on its merits only.

Looking-Glasses for the Dudes.

If I had a million I would have a looking-glass placed on every corner on Grand street, from the Bowery to Ludlow, for the dudes who are stuck on their shape. I would also loan them enough to redeem their overcoats.

A Good Investment.

Were I a millionaire I would contribute largely and in a quiet way to the help of the poor, and in doing so I would feel well repaid, as no better investment could be made with the money, and no better reward be had than that which comes by doing good and relieving those distressed. I am an ardent reader of your valuable paper, THE EVENING WORLD. It can't be torn. It leads them all. Success to it.

Dubious Benefaction.

I would like to let THE EVENING WORLD readers know how I would enjoy a million if I had it. I would start a bustle factory and supply every woman with a bustle much better and larger than their own, no matter whether the bustle would be out of fashion or not. I would start a cologne and face powder factory and supply every old maid with the finest of cologne and best of face powder so that they would attract more attention. I would not work any more, but enjoy the rest of my life living in Fifth avenue and looking at the dudes passing by my mansion.

He Remembers the Firemen.

If I were the owner of $1,000,000 I would give one-quarter towards the support of a hospital for firemen who get hurt in line of duty, so they could be cared for if their injuries were temporary. I would also build a home adjoining the hospital if they were disabled for life. In all the answers I have seen, none have remembered the brave firemen of this city.

Some Sensible Remarks.

If I can ever earn a million of dollars honestly—that is, without cheating, robbing or injuring my fellow-man—I shall then have acquired the knowledge how to spend it. But how to spend a gift of $1,000,000 is another story. I think I would like to be considered how that money was earned by the donor. Was it got by the starvation, physical, mental or moral, or any of his employees or from extortion, profits, or from stock or produce gambling and other equally reprehensible methods. Then I think my duty would be to use that money so to elevate and encourage those it had injured, that people who had cursed it might be able to say: God for the blessings that might be contained in the use and not the abuse of a MILLION OF DOLLARS.

IT WILL BE A CLOSE CONGRESS.

Present Advice Make the Numbers: Democrats, 169; Republicans, 153.

A vote thus far received indicates that the party will be about equally represented in the Fifty-first Congress. Roger Q. Mills is reported re-elected by a small plurality. John G. Carlisle has been re-elected by a substantial majority, while there was no opposition to Samuel J. Randall in the Third Texas Senate District. Conservative estimates gave the Democrats 169, the Republicans 153, and the Independents in the other House.

New Jersey will probably elect a Democratic senator to succeed MacPherson.

BRIDGEPORT'S ROMANTIC LOVE AFFAIR.

After Eighteen Years Stephen Carter, the Hero, Returns to His Old Love.

(SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.)

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Nov. 7.—Miss Dora Knoll was engaged eighteen years ago to Stephen Carter. He was too poor to marry, and went to St. Paul to seek a fortune. After a couple of years Miss Knoll discarded him and accepted Andrew Hartell as her husband. This engagement was also broken, and a year ago Miss Knoll promised to marry a Mr. Richardson.

The latter gentleman was very devoted, and presented Miss Knoll with many valuable gifts. About ten days ago Mr. Carter returned to Bridgeport, having amassed a fortune of considerable proportions. He called upon Miss Knoll and the old flame was at once rekindled. With the information that her heart failed to respond to his profligations of love, and that she should marry her old love before Dec. 1.
